My

source was the headphone jack. <http://chinajessie.com/seadata/data/uploads/img/159943404941.xml>

Can you help. Any ideaThe module sets the crossover frequency. Sounds like the module is loose or needs replaced.You could have a blown speaker or your ohm load could be too low for the channel on your amp This is rarely occurs with highs, just subs Check each speaker in your car with an ohm meter. They should ohm out to somewhere around 4 ohms. If they dont, the speaker is bad.Are you sure you are using the RCA input and not the RCA output jacks if it has such. Something you might try, is to make a jumper wire to temporarily jump from the audio input ground to the power supply chassis of car ground. If this makes it work then you have a input ground problem in the amp. Good luck. P.S. As for epoxying the trace down on your other amp. If the foil is still in good condition then it should be ok to epoxy it down.I love these headsets but the new headset volume doesnt turn up loud enough to even hear the person on the line barely. Yes Ive turned the volume up on headset and media volume all the way. Its very frustrating nc Ive purchased 2 new headsets with the same issue. Any input would be greatly appreciated. Thanks. I need step by step instructions I press mute on my Jabra 410, the red lights go on, but people can still hear me Answer questions, earn points and help others. When acquiring satellites, the battery power consumption is important. Track recording will start 1 minute before takeoff detection, otherwise, in the Configurator, you can turn off takeoff detection, and recording will start at GPS fix and run as long as the device is on. We cannot guarantee optimal performances in a car, at home, or in any constructed area.

Threshold values can be configured in the Configurator. More info on the Configurator page. Also, you can upload the KML file on Google Earth to view your flight in 3D. It will take about 20h of direct full sun to charge it at 70%. If more than one profile enabled, selection will be asked at start up. It's only a web page that also works offline. It's not possible to force a new calibration. There is no need to do it again even after an update or a reset. When it has been calibrated the first time, if it has been validated vocal confirmation, it means the sensors are properly and permanently calibrated. If the sensors would have not been properly calibrated, then the calibration would have failed and the process would have started over until the calibration validation. You just need to charge it during 1 hour using a USB charger and cable that you know is working try to charge your smartphone first. It is normal the LED does not lit. After 1 hour, turn it ON and according to the battery percentage, you can continue charging it. The LED will light in green when fully charged. They should also not be renamed.You can delete voice packs you don't use. If a voice pack is located outside the "voices" folder, it won't be working. They are organised in folders by dates or all in one folder. The vario is silent on ground by default you need to takeoff to enable the vario. alternatively, changing volume will unmute the vario It's not a bug, it's a feature the zero lift indicator ! It is integrated out of the last 15 seconds before the vocal announcement. There is even a specific option in the Configurator webapp it will make sure the track stick to the ground on Google Earth. It needs good satellite reception, so it may loose satellites while under the trees of a forest for example, and therefore it may cause "holes" in the track. Yes, if track recording is enabled in the Configurator webapp. The IGC file recorded is FAICIVL certified.

Yes, if track recording is enabled in the Configurator webapp. Surface mounted speakers, like the Boschmann W 3Way car audio box speakers, have always been popular in the car audio scene.
